

The Enterprise Cold Call Playbook

A studied, line-by-line script engineered to turn a cold dial into a booked 20-minute Flight Plan demo — plus the full objection playbook and a bank of every question a decision-maker will throw at you, answered.

THE ONE JOB OF THE CALL

Not to sell the platform — to earn the meeting. Book the demo, hang up, win later.

PIXEL PILOT — The autonomous media buyer that flies your ad spend to profit.
Premium AI Ads & Campaigns AI Automation Systems AI Employees Enterprise Decision-Makers
Confidential — Internal Sales Use Only — v1.0

00 Before You Dial — The Operating System

Read this once before every session. The words matter less than the posture. You are a confident peer with a contrarian insight, not a vendor reading features.

The five laws

- Tonality > words. Slow down. Lower your pitch. Sound like you have somewhere else to be.
- Ask, then shut up. The person who asks the questions controls the call. Silence after a question is a tool, not a gap.
- Diagnose, don't dump. Never list all the services. Find the wound, hand them the one bandage.
- Sell the meeting, not the product. The only close that matters today is a calendar hold.
- Detach from the outcome. You're offering to remove a problem. If they don't have it, move on — fast.

The 3-second math they're running

The instant you speak, an enterprise decision-maker asks three silent questions. Answer all three in your first 30 seconds or you're gone:

- "Who is this?" → Name + company, said with certainty.
- "Why should I care?" → A contrarian insight about their world, not your features.
- "What do you want?" → 20 minutes. Nothing bigger.

GOLDEN RULE

Enthusiasm is not persuasion. The calmest voice on the call is the most credible one. Match their pace, then slow it 10%.

Who you're calling

IDEAL CUSTOMER PROFILE

Persona	The wound	Lead service
VP / Head of Growth or Performance Brands spending $50k–$1M+/mo on paid	Steering by blended ROAS post-iOS; real profit per customer is a black box.	Premium AI AdsPre-Testing
CMO / VP Marketing Owns the number, not the button-clicks	Too many tools, too many agencies, no single brain that ties spend to margin.	AI Employees
Founder / COO at scaling DTC or ecom	No bandwidth; losers linger for days; onboarding new channels takes months.	AI Automation
Performance agency owner	Margin squeezed by manual labor; wants to scale accounts without scaling headcount.	White-label Fleet Command
Regulated vertical leader Supplements, med-spa, finance, crypto	Accounts get restricted or banned; scaling is terrifying.	Compliance-Safe Autopilot

01 The Opener — Pattern Interrupt + Permission

Goal: survive the first 10 seconds. Radical candor disarms the "not interested" reflex before it fires.

YOU

"Hey [Name] — it's [You] with Pixel Pilot. Full honesty: this is a cold call. Can I give you 30 seconds to tell you why I picked up the phone, and if it's not relevant you tell me to get lost? Fair?"

Why it works: naming the cold call is a pattern interrupt — they've never heard a rep admit it. "30 seconds" is a tiny, easy yes (a micro-commitment). "Tell me to get lost" hands them control, which lowers their guard. Wait for the yes before continuing.

If they push back

"I'M BUSY / IN A MEETING"

"Of course — I'll be quick or I'll disappear. Fifteen seconds and you decide?"

"WHO GAVE YOU THIS NUMBER?"

"Fair question — no one. I do my homework on brands scaling paid and yours came up. That's the whole reason I called."

02 The Hook — The Contrarian Insight

Goal: earn curiosity with a truth they feel but haven't articulated. Then stop talking.

YOU (≈20 SECONDS)

"We build autonomous media buyers and AI ad systems for brands doing $50k+ a month on Meta, Google and TikTok. Here's the pattern we keep seeing: you're paying the platforms to optimize to ROAS — which, post-iOS, is basically a vanity number they grade themselves on — while your actual profit per customer stays a black box. I'm curious whether that's roughly true on your side, or if you've already cracked it?"

Now stop. Let them react. Their answer tells you which service to lead with. If they say "we've cracked it" — great, ask how, and you'll find the gap. If they hesitate — you've found the wound.

ALT HOOKS BY PERSONA

For a CMO buried in tools: "Most teams your size have six ad tools and still can't answer one question — which dollar made the most profit? We replace the tools with an operator that just... does it."

For a lean/no-bandwidth founder: "You don't get another dashboard to log into — you get a media buyer that lives in your Slack and works while you sleep. Curious if bandwidth is actually your bottleneck right now?"

03 Discovery — Three Questions That Qualify AND Agitate

Every answer maps to a service. Take notes. Do not pitch yet — you're loading the gun.

1 • Profit truth

ASK

"When you judge a campaign as a winner, do you actually know the real profit per customer after COGS, shipping and returns — or is it blended ROAS you're steering by?"

2 • Who flies it

ASK

"Who's making the daily budget calls right now — you, an in-house buyer, an agency? And honestly, how fast do the losers actually get killed — same day, or do they bleed for a week?"

3 • Pain & urgency

ASK

"What would make the next 90 days a clear win — more volume, better margin, or just getting your team's time back? What's the thing you're actually fighting?"

REGULATED VERTICAL? ADD THIS

"Have you ever had an ad account restricted or banned? Walk me through how that went." — instant agitation, and a direct on-ramp to Compliance-Safe Autopilot.

Listen for the emotional word — "exhausting," "flying blind," "can't scale," "nervous." Echo it back later in the close. That word is the sale.

04 The Pitch — One Big Idea, Then Map Pain to Product

Lead line (always say this first)

YOU

"Here's the whole idea in one sentence: you don't get a login — you get an operator. Our AI ad systems and AI employees live in your Slack, work 24/7, and make the calls in-platform. No one clicking buttons. You wake up to results and a log of every move."

Then weave in only the 2–3 services that hit the pain they named. Diagnose, then prescribe.

If they said...	You prescribe (service → line)
"Our creative fatigues / we can't ship ads fast enough"	Premium AI Ads "Platform-native copy — hooks, primary text, headlines, CTAs — policy pre-flighted and paired with an on-brand visual, in under five minutes. Copy + compliance + creative in one pass, not a prompt box."
"We waste spend testing / half our ads flop"	Synthetic Pre-Testing "We score every variant against 500 synthetic buyers built from your real customer profile — before a dollar of spend. Only predicted winners get budget. Stop paying Meta to A/B test for you."
"No bandwidth / manual work is drowning us"	AI Employees "A crew of specialists — media buyer, profit analyst, creative director, growth strategist — deployed into your Slack in minutes. They log every move and report in plain English. Onboarding is a conversation, not a contract."
"Everything's manual / our stack doesn't talk"	AI Automation Systems "An always-on automation spine — instant quotes, follow-up sequencer, review harvester, owner reports — wired across your tools. The busywork runs itself."
"We steer by ROAS / margin is fuzzy"	Profit Optimization "It bids to your bank account, not the platform's scoreboard — wired into real COGS, returns and LTV. Meta will never optimize against its own revenue. We do."
"Launching a new channel/product takes forever"	Zero-to-Live "Point it at one URL. You get market research, synthetic personas, a channel + budget plan, first creative and a tracking checklist — in under an hour, while agencies are still scheduling kickoff."
"We need a whole new site / landing page"	Website Creation "Sitemap, conversion copy and a responsive, deploy-ready build — live, and you own the code. Built to convert the traffic you pay for."
"We get banned in our vertical"	Compliance-Safe Autopilot "We scale the niches that get accounts nuked — writing and optimizing inside policy guardrails and managing account health. No surprise bans."

Rule of the deck: name the pain → hand them the fix → tie down. "Does that hit the thing you're actually fighting?" Then go quiet.

05 Objection Playbook — Label → Reframe → Question

Never argue. Label the emotion, reframe the frame, question to re-open. Every objection ends with a question that hands them a soft next step.

BRUSH-OFF

"Just email me something."

"Totally fair — and honestly, a PDF won't do it justice. Sounds like the real bar is don't waste my time. What if I just show you it turn a URL into a live campaign strategy in 20 minutes — and if it's underwhelming, you never hear from me again?"

The trap of "email me" is it dies in the inbox. Trade the email for 20 minutes.

STATUS QUO

"We already have an agency / in-house team."

"Good — most of our best clients did too. We're not the person clicking buttons; we're the brain that makes it 24/7 and steers to profit, not ROAS. Would your team feel threatened by that, or thrilled to stop babysitting dashboards?"

Position as an upgrade to the team, not a replacement of the person you're talking to.

PRICE

"What does it cost?"

"Straight up — it's priced against the media buyer you'd hire, not the SaaS you'd cancel. Managed tiers run $2,500/mo for one channel up to $15k for unlimited; individual builds like Premium AI Ads or AI Employees start at $1,500–$2,000/mo. A senior buyer is $120k+ a year and sleeps. Which tier fits depends on your spend — want me to show you the math on the call?"

Never give a naked number. Anchor to the cost of a human hire, then redirect to the meeting.

SKEPTICISM

"AI can't really do this / I'm skeptical."

"You should be skeptical — most 'AI ad tools' are a glorified prompt box. The difference here is a proprietary creative system, synthetic pre-testing, and a model that gets private to your account and sharper every day. Don't take my word for it — let me show it live and you be the judge."

Agree with the skepticism. It's disarming and it's true of your competitors.

TIMING

"Now's not a good time."

"Understood — when it's not a priority, it's usually because the current setup isn't bleeding yet. If I could show you the profit you're leaving on the table in 20 minutes, is that worth a Thursday slot, or genuinely not this quarter?"

Reframe "not now" as "not bleeding yet." Then offer a specific, small time box.

AUTHORITY

"I'm not the decision-maker."

"Makes sense — and I'd rather not put you in the middle of explaining it. Who else would want to see a URL turn into a live strategy in 20 minutes? Happy to have you on the call too so you're not relaying it secondhand."

Don't abandon them — recruit them as your internal champion and get on the room.

TRUST

"Who else have you done this for?"

"Fair — we work with scaling DTC and ecom brands and performance agencies who white-label us. Rather than name-drop, the honest flex is: give me your URL on the call and watch it build a real plan live. That's more convincing than any logo I could list."

If you have named references, use them. If not, redirect to a live proof — it's stronger anyway.

SECURITY

"You'd have access to our ad accounts and data?"

"Great question — and exactly what a serious operator should ask. On the demo I'll walk you through how access and permissions work and what stays private to your account. Nothing gets connected until you're comfortable — the first 20 minutes needs nothing but a URL."

Never wing security. Acknowledge, defer specifics to the demo, and lower the ask to zero for the first call.

06 The Close — Assumptive, Low-Friction, Book the Flight

YOU

"Here's what I'd suggest — no pitch. Give me a product URL and 20 minutes, and I'll show you Pixel Pilot go from that URL to a live campaign strategy, optimizing to your real margin. Worst case, you walk away and steal the strategy. Are you better Tuesday morning or Thursday afternoon?"

This is a double-bind close: both answers are a yes to the meeting. Get the calendar hold before you hang up — send the invite while you're still on the phone. "Steal the strategy" removes all risk of saying yes.

Lock it down (say all three)

- Confirm the slot: "Perfect — Thursday 2pm your time. Sending the invite right now, tell me it landed."
- Set the ask: "All I need from you is one product URL in the invite. That's it."
- Pre-empt the no-show: "If something explodes and you need to move it, just reply to the invite — I'll always rebook, no chase."

07 Voicemail + Text — Under 15 Seconds

VOICEMAIL

"[Name], [You] with Pixel Pilot — we build AI ad systems and autonomous media buyers that optimize to real profit, not ROAS, for brands spending $50k+ a month. I've got a 20-minute thing that shows you the margin you're leaving on the table. I'll text the details — talk soon."

FOLLOW-UP TEXT

"Pixel Pilot — the autonomous media buyer + AI ad system. Want me to turn your product URL into a live campaign strategy in 20 min? [link]"

Send the text within 60 seconds of the voicemail. The one-two punch lifts callback rates dramatically — the voicemail creates recognition, the text creates an easy reply path.

08 The Question Bank — Every Question They'll Ask, Answered

Know these cold. When you answer a hard question without flinching, you win the credibility that books the meeting. Keep answers tight — then steer back to the demo.

Product & "how does it actually work"

Q

"What exactly is Pixel Pilot — software, an agency, or people?"

"It's an autonomous operator. Think of it as a media-buying department that runs as software — it lives in your Slack, makes real in-platform decisions, and logs everything. You get the output of a team without the headcount."

Q

"What are 'AI Employees' — really?"

"Specialized agents — a media buyer, a profit analyst, a creative director, a growth strategist — each scoped to a job, deployed into your Slack, working 24/7 and reporting in plain English. You direct them like a team; they never clock out."

Q

"How is this different from ChatGPT or the AI features already in Meta/Google?"

"Those are prompt boxes and platform tools that optimize to the platform's own metrics. We optimize to your profit — wired to real COGS and returns — pre-test creative before spend, and build a model private to your account that compounds. It's an operator, not a feature."

Q

"What channels do you support?"

"Meta, Google and TikTok as the core media mix, run as one portfolio so the next dollar goes wherever its marginal return is highest. Plus Shopify for real profit data."

Q

"Do the ads actually look good, or is it generic AI slop?"

"On-brand and platform-native — copy and visual briefed together and policy-cleared. That's exactly what the 20-minute demo shows: we'll generate a real ad for your product, live."

Results, risk & proof

Q

"What results / ROI can we expect?"

"I won't invent a number for a brand I haven't looked at — that'd be a red flag. What I can do on the call is show you, on your real URL and margins, where the profit leak is. The honest answer to ROI comes from your data, not my slide."

Q

"How long until we see impact?"

"Zero-to-Live gets you a full launch plan in under an hour. Optimization compounds from there — the model gets sharper on your account every day it flies. We'll map a realistic first-30-days on the demo."

Q

"What happens if it makes a bad call and wastes spend?"

"Guardrails and logs. It works inside budget and policy limits you set, kills losers fast, and records every move so nothing is a mystery. You can watch the reasoning, not just the outcome."

Q

"Is there a contract or lock-in?"

"Onboarding is a conversation, not a contract — I'll lay out terms plainly on the call. The whole model is 'earn it monthly,' which only works if it's paying for itself."

Pricing & commercial

Tier	Retainer	Performance	Best for
Pilot	$2,500/mo	+ 8% of spend	First paid channel, ≤ $50k/mo
Squadron popular	$6,000/mo	+ 6% of spend	Full media mix, ≤ $250k/mo
Fleet Command	$15,000/mo	+ 4% of spend	Category leaders, regulated, agencies — unlimited spend

À la carte builds (know these too): Website Creation from $2,500 · Premium AI Ads from $1,500/mo · AI Employees from $2,000/mo · Content Engine $1,200/mo · Zero-to-Live Plan $1,500 · Synthetic Pre-Testing $400/batch · Brand Identity Kit $1,200 · Offer & Funnel Architect $900.

Q

"Why the performance fee on top of the retainer?"

"Because we win when you win. The retainer covers the operator; the performance slice ties our upside to your spend performing. A pure-SaaS vendor gets paid whether it works or not — we don't."

Q

"That's more than [competitor / a tool subscription]."

"Right — because we're not a tool you log into, we're the operator that replaces the work. Compare it to a senior media buyer at $120k+ a year who sleeps and takes vacations, not to a $99 dashboard."

Q

"Can we start small / trial it?"

"Absolutely — that's what Pilot or a single à-la-carte build is for. Start on one channel or one deliverable, prove it, then scale. The 20-minute demo is the real 'trial' — you'll see it work before you commit a dollar."

Trust, security & the hard ones

Q

"Who owns the data, the creative, and the model?"

"You own your creative and code outright — sites ship as code you keep. The model that learns on your account is private to your account. I'll walk through the specifics on the call so it's in writing."

Q

"How do you handle account access and security?"

"Permissioned and revocable, connected only when you're ready — and the first demo needs nothing but a URL. I'll show you exactly how access works before anything touches your accounts."

Q

"What if it doesn't work for our niche?"

"Then I'll tell you on the call — I'd rather lose the deal than sign a brand we can't move. That's also why the demo runs on your URL, not a canned example: you'll see fit or lack of it in 20 minutes."

Q

"You're a young company — why should we bet on you?"

"Two reasons: you're not betting a dollar to find out — the demo is free and live on your data — and you own everything we build. The downside is 20 minutes; the upside is a media department that never sleeps."

Q

"Send me a case study / deck first."

"Happy to follow up with one — but the honest truth is a deck can't show you what a live build can. Give me the 20 minutes, watch it work on your URL, and I'll send the deck after so it actually means something. Tuesday or Thursday?"

09 One-Page Cheat Sheet — Tape This to Your Monitor

The flow in 6 beats

- 1. Open: "Cold call — 30 seconds, tell me to get lost. Fair?"
- 2. Hook: "You optimize to ROAS; real profit is a black box. True?"
- 3. Discover: Profit truth · Who flies it · What's the 90-day win.
- 4. Prescribe: Name pain → hand one fix → "Does that hit it?"
- 5. Handle: Label → reframe → question. Always end with a question.
- 6. Close: "URL + 20 min. Steal the strategy. Tues or Thurs?"

Services in one line each

- Premium AI Ads — finished, policy-cleared ad in <5 min.
- AI Employees — a specialist crew in your Slack, 24/7.
- AI Automation — the busywork runs itself.
- Website Creation — live, converting, you own the code.
- Synthetic Pre-Testing — test 500 buyers before $1 of spend.
- Zero-to-Live — URL in, full launch plan out, <60 min.
- Profit Optimization — bids to your bank account, not ROAS.
- Compliance-Safe — scale the niches that get banned.

Say this / never say this

Say	Never
"You get an operator."	"You get access to our platform."
"Steer to profit."	"Improve your ROAS."
"20 minutes, steal the strategy."	"Can I book a discovery call?"
"You should be skeptical."	"Trust me, it works."
"Priced against the hire."	"It's only $X a month."

Price anchors

- Pilot $2,500/mo + 8% · one channel
- Squadron $6,000/mo + 6% · full mix
- Fleet $15,000/mo + 4% · unlimited
- Builds from $900–$2,500 · AI Employees $2,000/mo

THE ONLY KPI TODAY

A calendar hold with a URL attached. Everything else is noise. Book it, confirm it, send the invite before you hang up.

Frame to close on

"A media-buying department that never sleeps — priced against the hire, not the tool. Worst case, you steal the strategy."

PIXEL PILOT · The autonomous media buyer that flies your ad spend to profit · Confidential — Internal Sales Use Only